

2017 Family-Run Organization Survey Results

Family-run organizations served over

128,060

- 68,520 families received one-to-one parent peer support
- 32,895 families participating in training
- 17,775 professionals participated in training
- 8,870 youth participated in programs

Budgets for family-run organizations range from $10,000 to 3.9 mil

- 17 organizations had budgets over 1 million
- 33 had budgets less than one million

120

family-run organizations across the U.S.

Family-run organizations provide

Peer Support

- 98% system navigation (phone and/or face-to-face)
- 95% information and referral (phone only)
- 68% intensive family support (wraparound, family preservation)
- 82% support groups

88%

of family-run organizations make accommodations for families' language or literacy in the services they provide

Family-run organizations support

All Families

pre-school children transition-age youth children placed in foster care youth with substance use children and youth in special education youth with intellectual disabilities LGBTQ youth and families military families children and youth with medical conditions

Family-run organizations meet families where they are

Outreach

in homes, schools, detentions centers, courts, residential treatment centers, hospitals and crisis centers

Top 4 reasons

- families contact a family-run organization
1. special education
 2. behavior problems at school
 3. transition-age youth
 4. contact with juvenile services

FREDLA

conducted the survey in March 2017 65 family-run organizations responded

50%

of the family-run organizations host a youth program or Youth MOVE Chapter